To whom it may concern,

For the first time in Incline High School history, there was a Mandarin class offered to our students outside of our school schedule as an extra-curricular activity. There were 28 students that participated in this class and 13 of these students received certificates at the completion of the activity.

This class was offered and taught by local volunteers and was well received here by staff and students. Their teaching included student-centered activities which involved listening, speaking, reading and writing in the Mandarin language. There was a great deal of Chinese history taught as well as Chinese art and Chinese virtues.

Cindy Perine and Nancy Wong invested a great deal of time and effort to educate these interested students in the hope of passing on a greater appreciation of the Mandarin language and Chinese culture.
